A LIBRARY OF GOOD BOOKS.

(Colonel Ben La Bree in Sunday's Courier-Journal.)

It has been well said that one of the first ambitions to be excited in all young men who are struggling up in life from nothing to something is the importance of forming and continually adding to a library of good books. A little library growing larger each year is an honorable part of a man's history. It is a man's duty to have books. A library is not a luxury, but one of the necessities of life. A borrowed book is but a cheap pleasure—and unappreciated and unsatisfactory tool. A very few books will do, if they are of the right kind; and they must be yours. To know the true value of books and to derive any satisfactory benefit from them you must first feel the sweet delight of buying them; you must know the preciousness of possession.

The desire for choice editions of standard authors is a natural result of the revolt from the flood of cheap literature placed on the market from time to time. Book lovers desire editions which will be not alone a pleasure to read, but also worthy to keep as permanent additions to their libraries. Books should be collected like good pictures and rare bric-a-brac, and not bought at random. The collection of books, if judiciously conducted is an excellent investment. The Roxburgh collection is supposed to have cost more than $20,000; it sold for about six times as much. The original disbursements for the Spencer collection are computed at $500,000; the books realized $1,250,000. A score of other instances can be given where books brought to the estate several times the amount originally paid for them.

John Bright, the great English statesman and reformer, said "you may have in a house costly pictures and costly ornaments, and a great variety of decoration, yet so far as my judgment goes, I would prefer to have one comfortable room well stocked with good books to all you can give me in the way of decoration which the highest art can supply. In the houses of the humble a little library, in my opinion, is a most precious possession."

TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLAR SUIT FILED AGAINST ASHLAND & IRONTON FERRY CO.

(Ironton Register.)

Attorneys Andrews and Irish and W. H. Edwards this morning filed a suit on behalf of William Deerfield against the Ashland & Ironton Transfer and Ferry Company to recover $20,000 for injuries sustained while he was a passenger on the Ashland Coal Grove ferry boat. It will be remembered that on August 8 last Deerfield boarded the ferry boat at Ashland to cross the river to Coal Grove enroute to Coal Grove Edward Pemberton, an employee on the boat, shot Deerfield, the ball taking effect in the latter's chin and penetrating the region at the base of his tongue. He alleges that this injury has permanently injured him, affected his speech, and rendered him unfit for manual labor of any kind and for these reasons he asks damages in the sum of $20,000.
